Volunteer with Primary Futures, gain new skills and inspire the workforce of the future

Primary Futures is a free online platform that connects volunteers from the world of work to their local primary and secondary schools to inspire young people.

With over a diverse range of 50,000 volunteers already part of our community across the UK – from apprentices to CEO's – Primary Futures offers organisations a quick and easy way to make a difference to the lives of children in their local community as well as develop additional key skills for staff.

Assembly Talks

Speed Networking

Classroom Chats

Enterprise Workshops

As a volunteer you'll play a key role in broadening horizons, challenging social and gender stereotypes, and helping young people to understand the relevance of subjects to jobs they might aspire to. On a personal level, it will allow you to:

- Demonstrate your commitment to your local community
- Develop key skills such as in public speaking and community engagement
- Raise awareness of the range of jobs within your sector, helping to diversify your future workforce

Signing up to become a volunteer takes a few minutes at <https://primaryfutures.org/>

If you would like more information, or if you're interested in inviting us to speak to your workforce about our local opportunities, please contact Derrick at derrick.otchere@educationemployers.org
